The EPA's regional offices will immediately halt field investigations at mines with tailings facilities in the aftermath of the 3-million-gallon release of toxic mine waste in southwest Colorado, EPA Administrator McCarthy says. "While we continue to investigate the root causes of last week's release of mining waste at the Gold King Mine in Colorado, we are instructing our regions to immediately cease any field investigation work at mines including tailings facilities, unless there is imminent risk in a specific case," McCarthy says at a briefing in Durango, Colo.

Nuke Waste Cleanup Delayed Again As Costs Double (dailycaller.com)

<http://dailycaller.com/2015/08/12/nuke-waste-cleanup-delayed-again-as-costs-double/>

Radioactive waste won't be treated at an aging South Carolina nuclear site until 2018 – nearly a decade later than planned and for more than double the original price, a government watchdog reported Wednesday. The Salt Waste Processing Facility at the Savannah River Site in South Carolina was supposed to be finished by 2008 at a cost of $900 million to treat 37 million gallons of radioactive waste stored underground, according to a Department of Energy inspector general report.

Why it's impossible to hide nuclear work in 24 days – or 24 years (reuters)

<http://blogs.reuters.com/great-debate/2015/08/13/why-its-impossible-to-hide-nuclear-work-in-24-days-or-24-years/>

One of the most misleading distortions being floated by political opponents of the Iran nuclear deal is the “24-day” loophole meme: Iran would be able to hide all evidence of any nefarious nuclear weapons work during the 24 days it may take inspectors to gain access to a suspicious site.

Republicans Meet With Netanyahu to Discuss Iran Nuclear Deal (NYT)

<http://www.nytimes.com/politics/first-draft/2015/08/13/republicans-meet-with-netanyahu-to-discuss-iran-nuclear-deal/>

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu did not directly advise visiting Republican members of Congress how to vote on the Iran nuclear deal, the leader of the delegation told reporters on Thursday. The head of a Democratic Congressional group that visited Israel last week had said the same thing to journalists. “He doesn’t tell us how to vote but he lays out concerns for the future about what the world could look like,” said Representative Kevin McCarthy of California, the House majority leader who is spending the week in Israel along with 35 mostly new members.
